

Is the capital of the Spanish community of Catalunya, home of the world famous architect Gaudí and one of the most beautiful and vibrant cities in Spain. Nowadays Barcelona is recognised as one of Europe's most popular short break destinations. The main and the most well known street of Barcelona is the so called Las Ramblas, which tumbles from Plaza de Catalunya southeast towards the Mediterranean. La Rambla is busy pedestrian street around the clock, especially in the evenings and during weekends. But Barcelona is not only Gaudí's modernist architecture, there are much more. The Gothic quarter, for instance, must be one of the biggest in Spain with its maze of interconnecting dark streets linking with squares, and there are plenty of cafés and bars where you can relax. Besides, all the cultural and artist interest, it is a city blooming of joy and entertainment.
